NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have ready this week "Underwoods," the new volume of verse by Robert Louis Stevenson.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. will publish at once "A Speculator in Petticoats," translated from the French of Hector Malot by Mary Neal Sherwood. The novel is considered in France one of the remarkable books of the day, the heroine belonging to a class which the last Empire made no uncommon one in Paris.

GEORGE H. ELLIS has just ready "The History of Medfield, Mass.," by W. S. Tilden, fully illustrated, with views of all the old landmarks and historic personages; also "Essays," by George Bachelor, some of which have received marked attention during their publication in The Forum; "Science and Immortality," the Christian Register symposium, revised and enlarged, edited by Samuel J. Barrows—the work enriched with additional contributions from Prof. A. Graham Bell, A. W. Greely, Prof. Jos. Le Conte, and others; and "Critical Essays," by the late Ezra Abbott.

ROBERTS BROS. announce that they are already publishing a second edition of Judge Tourgee's new book, "Button's Inn," to enable them to fill advance orders. This fact promises wide popularity for the latest literary effort of the author of "A Fool's Errand," which is a study of the first developments of Mormonism in this country, and the locality on the Chautauqua Hills and Lake Erie shore from whence it sprung. The work will be given to the trade Sept. 1. They have ready a new edition of F. C. Burnand's amusing "New History of Sandford and Merton," with Linley Sambourne's graphic illustrations.

THE D. LOTHROP CO. has just ready "Russian Novelists," from the French of M. de Vogüé by J. L. Edmands, an exposition of life and feeling in Russia through an examination of the most characteristic Russian writers, including a critical and general estimate of current Russian literature; "Royal Girls and Royal Courts," by M. E. W. Sherwood, a book of twelve chapters on nearly as many European Courts, with special regard to the local etiquette; "Some Things Abroad," by Alexander Mackenzie, D.D., a chatty and pleasant narrative of a journey through Europe and the Holy Land, by an acute observer and profound scholar.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have just published a dainty large-paper edition of Prosper Mérimée's "Carmen," with exquisite illustrations from designs by S. Arcos, engraved by A. Nargeot; to their edition of Daudet's translations they have recently added "Tartarin of Tarascon: traveller, 'Turk,' and lion hunter," with 115 graceful illustrations by Montégut, de Myrbrach, Picard, and Rossi; in addition to the édition de lux of Caldecott's complete works which they have under way they are issuing his "Last Graphic Pictures" in similar style to his "Graphic Pictures" and "More Graphic Pictures," which were such a success the last two seasons. These "Last Graphic Pictures" show the same qualities of sympathetic humor which all of Caldecott's work possessed, and which gave him, while living, his strong hold upon the English and American people.

BASE-BALL NOTES.

THE Funk & Wagnalls and The Century Co. nines played their second game of base-ball this season on Saturday last, 20th inst., at "Madison Grounds," One Hundred and Fifteenth Street and Fifth Avenue, New York. The game was mild throughout. Neither team had their regular battery, and substitutes had to be put in, especially so in the case of the Century club, who put in two men found at the grounds. The seventh inning was started, and F. & W. being first at the bat scored seven runs and but one man out, when the game was called back to the sixth inning, and given to Funk & Wagnalls. Score by innings:

Funk & Wagnalls	5	9	7	2	0	3	—26
Century Co	5	6	0	2	0	4	—17

The Funk & Wagnalls' B. B. Club want to arrange to play the "rubber" game with the Century Co. nine before the season closes, if possible.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Andrews, Lilian Herbert. Only a farmer's daughter. Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1887. c. 206 p. D. pap., 25 c.

The authoress is a member of the New York Bar. "Only a farmer's daughter" marries the hero, a writer of novels, and lives happily with him until at a great reception he meets an adventuress, with whom he had once been in love. She follows him around and notifies his wife of his whereabouts, and makes things very sad for the "farmer's daughter." All ends happily. The hero is supposed to be an intimate friend of a police inspector, who initiates him into the details of crimes, in one of which the adventuress had figured many years ago.

Balzac, Honoré de. Père Goriot: scenes from Parisian life; with 6 il. by Lynch. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1887. 20+348 p. O. bds., $4.

Bancroft, Hubert Howe. History of the Pacific States of North America, v. 3. Central America, v. 3. 1801–1887. San Francisco, The History Company, 1887. 15+776 p. O. cl., $4.50; leath., $5.50; hf. cf., hf. rus., or hf. mor., $8; rus., mor., or tree cf., $10.

This completes the history of Central America, covering the last days of Spanish rule, the achievement of independence, and the union with Mexico. It shows how the states joined in a confederation and formed a constitutional government, taking the constitution of the United States as its model. Civil war followed, leading to the dissolution of the republic and of the union. The various states are treated separately, showing the difficulties that have beset their development. Walker's campaign in Nicaragua is depicted and his career is followed till filibustering in Central America was crushed out. The adventurer is handled without gloves. One of the most important parts of the volume gives a general view of the resources of the different states, and of the characteristics of the inhabitants of each, together with descriptions of the principal cities. The volume closes with a careful review of the many efforts that have been made to establish interoceanic communication.

Bancroft, Hubert Howe. History of the Pacific States of North America, v. 24. History of Oregon, v. 1. 1834–1848. San Francisco, The History Company, 1886. 39+789 p. O. cl., $4.50; leath., $5.50; hf. cf., hf. rus., or hf. mor., $8; rus., mor., or tree cf., $10.

The coming of the first settlers who emigrated to Oregon with the definite purpose of settling there is treated with great detail, the successive immigration of each year being treated separately. The crossing of the plains and intervening mountains with its attending hardships and suffering occupy considerable space. The unsuccessful mission efforts are described, and the final destruction of the Presbyterian by the Whitman massacre. The organization of the provisional government before the government had taken definite action is described, with the influences that led to it, and the Oregon question before congress, which at length resulted in the erection of a territorial government. Several chapters are given to the Cayuse war.

Bar, Paul, M.D. The principles of antiseptic methods applied to obstetric practice; tr. and ed. by H: D. Fry, M.D. Phil., P. Blakiston, Son & Co., 1887. 175 p. O. cl., $1.75.

Barrett, Frank. His helpmate. N. Y., Appleton, 1887. 3–256 p. S. pap., 30 c.

Madge Goddard's fate is settled by a picture her father Potter Goddard, an idle, impecunious artist, paints of her, and gets accepted by the London Academy. Two gentlemen, partners in the brewing establishment of Motley & Harlowe, lose their hearts to her counterfeit presentment. She accepts one through a desire for wealth, and then casts him off through real love for the other. The beauty of her character in adversity is the reason for the title. The character-sketching is very good, as are also the glimpses of Bohemian London. By the author of "The great Hesper."

Bayma, Jos. Elements of analytic geometry. San Francisco, Cal., A. Waldteufel, 1887. c. 72 p. O. cl., $1.50.

"The present volume contains as much analytical geometry as can be read to our second class of mathematics within six or seven months of the scholastic year, after the study of plane and spherical trigonometry. . . . I have added an outline of geometry of three dimensions, as also a chapter on surfaces of the second degree." —Preface. The author is professor of mathematics in Santa Clara College, S.J., Santa Clara, Cal.

Field, Eugene. Culture's garland; being memoranda of the gradual rise of literature, art, music, and society in Chicago, and other western ganglia; with an introduction by Julian Hawthorne. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1887. c. 11+326 p. S. (Ticknor's pap. ser., no. 16.) pap., 50 c.

A collection of sketches, reviews, anecdotes, and poems, whose strongest characteristics are their wit and humor. The author, Eugene Field, is the editor of the Chicago Daily News. Julian Hawthorne speaks of him as one already famous in journalism, although his name was only heard for the first time a few years ago. The little book will be found full of genuine fun and quite entertaining.

Halse, G: Weeping Ferry: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1887. 52 p. Q. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., no. 596.) pap., 20 c.

"Weeping Ferry" gained its name from its girdle of weeping willows; it was the home of Peter Ray, the venerable ferry-man, and his daughter Effie, and also the scene of the leading events of this story. The story is a simple English tale of wrongs righted through the pertinacity of a young lawyer in hunting up facts. He comes to "Weeping Ferry" in the character of a novelist and moth-hunter, and in time gets together the details of a narrative which proves that an apparently obscure girl is the heiress of the Manor-house of Kesterton.

Hawthorne, Julian. The great bank robbery; from the diary of Inspector Byrnes. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1887.] c. 4+235 p. S. cl., $1.

The basis of this story is the robbery of the Manhattan Savings Institution, on the corner of B'way and Bleecker Sts., N. Y. which took place early in the morning of Oct. 27, 1878. Mr. Hawthorne has thrown his imagination around the narrative, investing it with a great deal of artistic finish. A woman moving in good society is brought into the story, as a partner of the thieves, aiding them in many ways with information, etc.

Heyse, Paul. The romance of the Canoness: a life history; from the German by J. M. Percival. N. Y., Appleton, 1887. c. 265 p. D. hf. cl., 75 c.

A refined, sympathetic story of a woman's life. The scene is laid in Germany some twenty years ago, the story being told by a young tutor, or at least one who was young when he first conceived his passion for the beautiful canoness. Through his position of instructor he meets her in her uncle's house, and learns to know and sympathize with her troubles. His interest in her never lessens while she lives, and he gives the details of her innermost life. Her marriage to a celebrated German actor gives an interesting inside view of the German stage.

N. Y., Appleton, 1887. c. 140 p. Q. bds., $1.60.

The services of ten well-known specialists and scientists were obtained in the preparation of this geography. The following are some of its most noteworthy features: The most recent views in regard to vulcanology and earthquakes are presented, with illustrations to the present year. The theory of ocean currents is clearly unfolded in the light of the latest discoveries. The subject of climate receives peculiarly full and interesting treatment, as also that of clouds and precipitation. The general motions of the atmosphere are made plain by the application of Ferrel's law; while the perplexities environing the consideration of cyclonic storms are more thoroughly disentangled than in any other American school-book. The chapters devoted to geology, botany, zoölogy, and ethnology, are as fascinating as they are instructive. The text is lively and readable throughout. An ample bibliography of the subject is introduced, adding greatly to the value of the work. The mechanical parts of the work deserve the highest praise.

Walker, Jerome, M.D. Health lessons: a primary book. N. Y., Appleton, 1887. c. 194 p. il. D. cl., 56 c.

In this little book the aim has been to teach health-subjects to young children in a truthful and interesting way, and by somewhat different methods than those usually employed. While there is special teaching as to the effects of alcoholic stimulants and of narcotics upon the human system, they are presented in such a way, in connection with other subjects, as is believed will appeal most forcibly to the imagination and the reasoning powers of children, and leave the strongest impressions upon the mind as to the evils attending the use of these things. The lessons have been tested in ten-minute talks and reviews to the primary classes of the Brooklyn Training-School for Teachers.

ENGLISH BOOKS IN JAPAN.

THE great spread of instruction in the English language in Japan has naturally led to a growing demand for English books. Over 85,000 English books of all classes were imported last year, as against 40,000 in 1885. The import of American books, that is to say of books printed in America, increased from 59,000 in 1885 to 119,000 in 1886. Sir F. R. Plunkett, British Consul at Tokio, remarks upon this: "An argument against a large import of educational works has hitherto existed in the fact that foreigners have no claim to the protection of the Japanese copyright, and any work that gained extensive popularity was sure to be pirated by Japanese publishers, and cheap editions of it issued that could be profitably sold at far less cost than the imported originals. This difficulty has been and can be got over by the co-operation of Japanese booksellers, and in this way not only is the benefit of copyright obtained, but the books are sold at lower prices than were formerly obtained for them by European booksellers in Japan." A large demand during the year for printing paper is traced principally to the publication of numerous translations of English works on law, political economy, history, and other educational subjects. It does not appear from the report whether there is at present any considerable demand in Japan for English literature of the lighter kinds. As, however, the next generation of educated Japanese will be almost universally able to read our language, which is now required to be taught in the public elementary schools, such a demand is sure to be forthcoming.—London Globe.

THE "Pilgrim's Progress" has been translated into Japanese, and appears with—to European eyes—most comic illustrations by native artists. Christian has a close-shaven Mongolian head. Vanity Fair is a feast of lanterns, with all the popular Japanese amusements; the dungeon of Giant Despair is one of those large wooden cages well known to Eastern criminals; and the angels waiting to receive the pilgrims on the further side of the bridgeless river are dressed after the latest Yokohama fashions.

OBITUARY.

PROFESSOR SPENCER FULLERTON BAIRD.

A SPECIAL dispatch to the New York Tribune dated August 19, announcing the death of Professor Spencer Fullerton Baird, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, and United States Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries, was not unexpected by his friends. "When he was removed from Washington to Woods Holl several months ago," says the same journal, "it was a question whether he would survive the journey, and the flattering reports of his improvement from time to time did not deceive his friends, who knew that his days were numbered. He was a victim of overwork. Professor Baird had not reached his sixty-fifth birthday, but for thirty-seven years he had been the executive officer of the Smithsonian Institution, to which he was called as Assistant Secretary by Professor Henry, four years after its establishment. Born at Reading, Penn., in February, 1823, Spencer F. Baird was graduated at Dickinson College in 1840 at the age of seventeen years. He was a stalwart youth, and in the ten years between his graduation and his coming to the Smithsonian Institution he accomplished much. He studied natural history, and in 1842 was a student of medicine in the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons, but never formally completed his course, although he received the degree of M.D., honoris causa, from the Philadelphia Medical College in 1844.

"Professor Baird received the degree of Doctor of Physical Science from Dickinson College, and that of Doctor of Laws from Columbian University. He was in 1878 awarded the silver medal of the Acclimatization Society of Melbourne; in 1879 the gold medal of the Société d'Acclimation of France, and in 1880 the Erster Ehrenpreig of the International Fischerei Ausstellung, at Berlin, the gift of the Emperor of Germany. In 1875 he received from the King of Norway and Sweden the decoration of Knight of the Royal Norwegian Order of St. Olaf. He was one of the early members of the National Academy of Sciences; served two years as permanent secretary of the American Association; was one of the trustees of the Corcoran Art Gallery; was a trustee of Columbian University; had been a president of the Cosmus Club of this city, an association of scientists, and was the director and official head of the National Museum. He held honorary and corresponding memberships in many of the most renowned scientific societies of the world. In early manhood he formed a warm personal friendship with Audubon, with whom he was for many years in correspondence, and later he was associated with Agassiz in scientific work and publications.

"His literary labors began at an early age. The publication of the "Iconographic Encyclopædia," which he translated from the German, began in 1849. A bibliography of his works from 1843 to 1882 contained nearly 1200 titles. Until within the last year his literary activity was unabated. Among his important literary works were 'The Birds of North America' (1860); "Mammals of North America' (1859); 'Review of American Birds in the Museum of the Smithsonian Institution' (1864), and 'History of North American Birds' in conjunction with F. M. Brewer and R. Ridgeway, from 1870 to 1878. Professor Baird was the scientific editor of the 'Annual Record of Science and Industry,' and for thirty-five years he edited the annual reports of the Smithsonian Institution. He was a man of great executive ability, which, as well as his scientific eminence, was recognized in 1871 by President Grant, who appointed him United States Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries, an office which he continued to fill with pre-eminent ability until his death. Professor Baird was both a student and a teacher; while he held himself in modest estimation he was always ready to communicate his knowledge to others, and he never became too old or too wise to learn. That in substance was the epitome of his character given by one of the most eminent scientists in the country some time ago when he heard a rumor that Spencer F. Baird was dead. His remains will be brought to Washington at once for interment."

JOHN PALGRAVE SIMPSON.

A DISPATCH from London to the New York Times announces the death there on August 19 of John Palgrave Simpson, the playwright and author. "A native of Norfolk County," to quote the Times, "he was educated at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, where he took the degree of B.A., and subsequently M.A. Many years of his early life were spent in travel on the Continent, in the course of which he acquired that familiarity with the different phases of human character which subsequently became the prominent feature of his writings. Originally intended for holy orders, his tastes developed in another direction, and when he eventually settled down to a life-work, he found his arena in the field of literature, contributing for years to Blackwood and Frazer's Magazine and Bentley's Miscellany. He wrote 'Second Love, and other tales,' published in 1846; 'Gisella, a novel,' and 'Letters from the Danube,' in 1847; 'Lily of Paris, or, the king's nurse,' and 'Pictures from Revolutionary Paris,' in 1848. Mr. Simpson returned definitely to England in 1850, and began writing for the stage, meeting with pronounced success from the outset. Altogether he produced about 40 pieces of various kinds, some of which attained considerable popularity in this country. Among the number are 'The World and the Stage,' a melodrama; 'Second Love,' a comedy which had quite a run in America several years ago, and 'Sybilla, or, step by step.' He also wrote a biography of Karl Maria von Weber, compiled from materials collected by the son of the great composer, and which was published in 1865."

ORSON S. FOWLER.

PROF. FOWLER, the noted phrenologist and lecturer, and for many years a member of the firm of Fowler & Wells, died on the 18th, at his home near Sharon Station, N. Y., after a brief illness. The immediate cause of his death was spinal trouble superinduced by a heavy cold. He was nearing his seventy-ninth year, having been born Oct. 11, 1809, at Cohocton, Steuben County, N. Y.

In 1838, Mr. Fowler began the publication of The Phrenological Journal, his younger brother, Lorenzo, and Dr. Nathan Allen, of Lowell, Mass., being associated with him in the management of the new periodical. In 1843 the Fowler brothers joined with Samuel R. Wells, forming the firm of Fowler & Wells, of this city, which soon became the chief publication house in the United States for phrenological books and pamphlets. Orson Fowler remained with the firm until 1865, lecturing and writing, besides editing The Phrenological Journal. Among his more important works are: "Memory and Intellectual Improvement," "Self-Culture and Perfection of Character," "Physiology, Mental and Animal," "Matrimony," "Hereditary Descent," "Phrenology Proved, Illustrated, and Applied," and "The Self-Instructor in Phrenology." After retiring from the firm of Fowler & Wells he took to lecturing, spending about ten months of each year travelling on routes through the West and South.

PROF. N. A. RANDOLPH.

WE have to record the sad death of Prof. N. A. Randolph, of the University of Pennsylvania, at Atlantic City, Aug. 21. He was in the best of health that day at noon, when he went in bathing. Ten minutes later he was a corpse. The deadly undertow caught him, as he went out to meet the breakers, and soon carried him out of the reach of assistance, and he sank to rise no more, in the sight of many bathers. Prof. Randolph was one the best known physicians in Philadelphia. He was known to his colleagues through his busy pen, and he burned many lampfuls of midnight oil in contributing to contemporaries of medical literature when most of his fellows were asleep. He and Dr. C. W. Dulles were the editors and publishers of the Medical and Surgical Reporter, a weekly; the Quarterly Compendium of Medical Science, and the Physicians' Daily Pocket Register, a guide for physicians. Prof. Randolph was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1882, and shortly afterward became instructor in physiology. He was very popular with the students. He was only about 38 years old.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

RICHARD H. SUTTON, Manchester, Eng., has just issued his August catalogue (No. 30) of books in miscellaneous literature. (12 p., O., pap.)

S. A. MAXWELL & CO., Chicago, have just sent out their fourth annual illustrated descriptive catalogue (no. 12) of staple stationery and druggists' sundries for the season of 1887–8. (168 p., il. 4°, pap.)

THE Forest and Stream Publishing Co., 39 Park Row, N. Y., have just issued a "Catalogue of Books on Field Sports and Out-Door Life," published and for sale by them. The titles are followed by descriptive notes, making the little pamphlet very useful. (40 p., S., pap.)

THE great work undertaken in 1855 by the late Francesco Cerroti (a remarkable example of Italian erudition and versatility), "a Bibliografia di Roma," is about to begin to be published in the year of his death, by Forzani & Co., of Rome. It will make four quarto volumes in double columns of admirable typography, the works enumerated being classified under six heads—the physical history of the city coming last. The titles are frequently accompanied by critical or analytical accounts of the contents. The price will be twenty lire per volume.—Nation.

VANDENHOECK & RUPRECHT, Göttingen, Germany, have for thirty-six years made a specialty of quarterly catalogues of incalculable value to students in all branches of science. They appear under the names of bibliotheca philologica; bibliotheca medico-chirurgica; bibliotheca theologica; bibliotheca historica-naturalis; and bibliotheca-historica. These bibliographies record the titles of all new publications in their respective branches, classified under subject headings, as well as of all articles of scientific interest appearing in current periodical literature. They are as valuable to foreigners as to Germans, and have already enjoyed a large sale among scientists of every nationality. The special attention of the trade is called to these wonderfully accurate compilations, in the hope that a market can be made for them on American soil.

THE indefatigable Mr. W: M. Griswold has just issued as a supplement to his Continuous Index for September, 1887, an eight-page paper (octavo) sheet called "The Novel List." Librarians will find it both time-saving and temper-saving, as it is designed to answer the annoying and perpetual request, "Give me a good new novel." It consists of an alphabetical catalogue, by title and author, of works of fiction published in English during 1886, with notes descriptive of the character of each, and an index. The characterization or verdict is based upon the opinions of such authorities as the Athenæum, Critic, Nation, and Saturday Review, and is indicated by a letter after the title, thus "a," meaning the book is a tale of adventure; "b," of Bohemian life; "d," dull, "g," gloomy, "v," vicious, "x," sensational, "y," silly, and so on. The index groups the books by subjects or places. The whole is quite simple and ingenious. (10 c.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALEDO, ILL.—Victor K. Croson, bookseller, etc., it is reported, has made an assignment.

BOSTON.—Clarke & Carruth, owing to the large increase of business in their stationery department, have leased and are fitting up the adjoining store—toward Franklin Street—for that department, and they propose to carry one of the finest stocks of stationery, etc., to be found in Boston.

DETROIT, MICH.—John Macfarlane, bookseller and stationer, has removed from 135 to 153 Woodward Ave., into a new and commodious store, fitted up to the special wants of a first-class book-store.

HANNIBAL, MO.—Boughton & McCann, booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

HUTCHINSON, KANSAS.—L. H. Fielding, formerly with A. C. McClurg & Co., of Chicago, has purchased the book-store of F. B. Cole, of Hutchinson, Kansas. It is the intention of Mr. Fielding to increase the stock, and in the future it will be operated as a jobbing house.

NEW YORK CITY.—Mr. Charles E. Merrill, who retired from the firm of Taintor Bros., Merrill & Co., publishers, a year or more ago, and his brother, Mr. Edwin C. Merrill, who has been for many years connected with the same house, have organized a new firm for the publication of educational books under the name of Charles E. Merrill & Co. Among the new publications which they will have ready in the early fall is an entirely new series of writing books, prepared by practical instructors in penmanship and claimed to possess many unique and valuable features. The office and salesrooms of the new firm will be at 743 Broadway, N. Y.

SPOKANE FALLS, WASH. TERR.—C. F. Clough & Co., booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—Mr. D. S. Miller and Mr. J. P. Powers have formed a copartnership under the name of D. S. Miller & Co., to carry on a book, stationery, and wall-paper business at 9 Woodruff House Block, and desire publishers and manufacturers to send them catalogues and price-lists.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A. EYRICH, New Orleans, has in press, for early issue, "Who Did It," by the Hon. Robert N. Ogden.

G. W. DILLINGHAM has in press a novel, "At the Mercy of Tiberius," by Mrs. Augusta J. Evans Wilson, the author of "Beulah" and "St. Elmo."

ALFRED AUSTIN'S new poem, "Prince Lucifer," has been in the printer's hands for some weeks, and will be published by Macmillan & Co. early in October.

ELLIOT STOCK, London, announces, in his Book-Lover's Library, a new edition, shortly, of Blades' "Enemies of Books." It will have an additional chapter, and will be illustrated with new drawings.

E. GERARD, the author of "Reata" and other novels, has written a book on Transylvania, which will be published by Messrs. Blackwood, under the title of "The Land Beyond the Forest." It will be in two volumes, with maps and illustrations.

"A CORPORAL'S STORY: experiences in the ranks of Company C, 81st Ohio Vols., 1861-1864," by Charles Wright, late Corporal Company C, will be published Oct. 1. James Beale, 719 Sansom St., Phila., and Maj. W. B. Chamberlin, Cin., will have the work on sale.

THE FOREST AND STREAM PUBLISHING CO. has in press "Uncle Lisha's Shop, or, life in a corner of Yankeeland," by Rowland E. Robinson, a charming series of character sketches in which figure a number of personages whose names have long been household words with readers of the Forest and Stream.

HARPER & BROS. have notified Collector Seeberger, of Chicago, of their ownership of the copyright of Gen. Lew Wallace's "Ben Hur." The book is being published in Canada with a view to its importation into the United States, and the Government authorities are requested to detain all copies of the Canadian publication.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have made arrangements with Hachette & Co., of Paris, for the publication in English of the lives of eminent French men and women of letters. The plan of this series is about the same as that of the English Men of Letters and the size is very nearly the same also. The first volume will be Mde. de Sévigné, by Gaston Boissier. Others will follow in due course.

IN connection with the plan to form a Walt Whitman Society in Boston, the Traveller, of that city, says: "Boston prohibits the sale of Walt Whitman's books. Even their circulation from the Public Library is forbidden, and his volumes appear there with the ominous three stars that tell the tale to the initiated. The idea of establishing a society for the promotion of ideas which the statutes of the city forbid to circulate is simply delicious. Boston is nothing if not consistent."

WALTER BESANT is about to publish in the English provincial press, in serial form, a new story, entitled "Herr Paulus: his rise, his greatness, and his fall." The author describes "Herr Paulus" as a story of modern life and manners. It treats of the rise, the greatness, and the fall of an adventurer, who will come to London in order to trade upon the credulity of the circle which live among Spiritualists, Mediums, Esoteric Buddhists, Occult Philosophers, Thought Readers, and so forth.

SOME cheap reprints of English books brought out by the Illustrated Publishing Co. of Chicago, entitled "Fairy Gold," "All in the Wild March Morning," etc., have by a strange mistake borne the name of Mrs. E. O. Kirk. Mrs. Ellen Olney Kirk once published a novellette called "Fairy Gold," which has no connection with the work of the English writer, and Mrs. Kirk wishes it to be distinctly understood that she has nothing to do with the publications of the Illustrated Publishing Co. of Chicago.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. have in press, and will issue in a few weeks, a work entitled "Land Titles in Virginia and West Virginia." The author, Hon. John A. Hutchinson, of the West Virginia Bar, is one of the ablest and most experienced lawyers in that State. He has been extensively engaged in the investigation, and discussion in the courts, of the subjects here treated, and his thorough familiarity with the points involved has enabled him to produce a work that will be found of great value to all those who are in any manner interested in the legal topics discussed.

MRS. SARAH K. BOLTON will put forward not less than three books during the coming fall. There will be two prose works, one treating of "Some Successful Women," giving sketches of famous women who have ascended the ladder of fame; while the other will deal with such successful authors, dead and living, as Irving, Lowell, Holmes, Aldrich, Hawthorne, Longfellow, Howells, Mark Twain, Will Carleton, and a score or more of others. Mrs. Bolton's third work will consist of a volume of poems entitled "From Heart and Nature," jointly written by herself and her son, Charles K. Bolton, a young Harvard student, who has succeeded in gaining entrée into the pages of several of the leading magazines with his clever and musical verses.

THE CENTURY Co. are about to issue "Aids to Common Worship," a book of services, including responsive readings, chants, hymns of praise, etc., for each Sabbath in the year. It will include services for the reception of church-members, baptism, communion, etc. It is the work of the Rev. Richard G. Greene, of Orange, N. J., who has been engaged upon it for many years. The same company is about to bring out a new Sunday-school hymn and tune book, "Songs of Worship," edited by Prof. Waldo S. Pratt, of the Hartford Theological Seminary, which will contain a number of new pieces by the American composers, Dudley Buck, Gilchrist, Warren, and others, with the best of the work of foreign musicians, Barnby, Sullivan, Dykes, Stainer, and others. A new edition of the Rev. Dr. Robinson's church hymn and tune book, "Laudes Domini," will soon be issued by The Century Co., printed from new plates. The names of authors and composers have been added, and new type has been used throughout. An abridged edition for chapels and smaller churches is to follow.

MESSRS. ROBERTS BROTHERS

PUBLISH SEPTEMBER 1:

JUDGE TOURGEE'S NEW BOOK:

Button's Inn.

By ALBION W. TOURGEE, author of "A Fool's Errand," "Hot Plowshares," etc. One handsome 12mo volume, bound in cloth, 428 pages, $1.25.

Judge Tourgee's new story is located in the region of Chautauqua Hills and Lake Erie Shore, at the time just before the stage-coach gave way to the locomotive—1815 to 1830. In the volume only the name and situation of the original Button's Inn have been retained. He says: "The life of this region in which the story is located, during the later years of the Inn, was precisely that from which Mormonism sprang. Two of its early leaders—one an Apostle—went from this county. Without regard to what Mormonism now is, I have endeavored to depict it as it was then regarded, both by those who came in contact with it and the 'Saints' themselves."

The New History of Sandford and Merton.

Being a true Account of the Adventures of "Masters Tommy and Harry," with their Beloved Tutor, "Mr. Barlow." By F. C. BURNAND, author of "Happy Thoughts," etc. With 75 illustrations by Linley Sambourne. 16mo, cloth, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

TO THE TRADE.—We have already printed a second edition of "Button's Inn" to enable us to fill advance orders. If you have not ordered, be good enough to send your orders at once.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED:

A VOLUME OF VERSE BY

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

UNDERWOODS.

Author's Edition. 1 vol., 12mo, gilt top, $1.00.

This volume—Mr. Stevenson's first collection of poems beyond "A Child's Garden of Verses"—is likely to have a welcome of a very rare and cordial kind. Among the poems are some for which it is safe to prophesy the permanence of masterpieces; but many more, each one of which will have for its readers that indescribable touch and perfect expression of feeling which no one living can equal in its peculiar simplicity and directness.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

A CHILD'S GARDEN OF VERSES.

12mo, gilt top, $1.00.

"The charm of the poems lies in their perfect blending of the folly and artlessness of childhood with quaint conceit and lively fancy."—Chicago Herald.

"There is much that is airy, graceful, delicate, and fanciful in this volume."—British Quarterly Review.

THE NEW VOLUME IN THE BYRNES-HAWTHORNE SERIES.

The Great Bank Robbery.

FROM THE DIARY OF INSPECTOR BYRNES,

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

EXTRA CLOTH, $1.00. PAPER, 50 CENTS.

This story describes with the thrilling touch of fact, and the magic pen of the romancer, the robbery of the Manhattan Savings Bank, one of the cleverest rascalities of modern times. It imparts a new interest to the "woman in the case," and gives us a story of crime and intrigue unequalled in modern literature.

20th THOUSAND.

A TRAGIC MYSTERY.

FROM THE DIARY OF INSPECTOR BYRNES,

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

EXTRA CLOTH, $1.00. PAPER, 50 CENTS.

"The Best Selling Book of the Year."

"The story is very interesting and the language clear and succinct. The words 'baffled' and 'unravel' are, I think, not used at all; and I may state, as a tribute to the absorbing interest of the tale, that one reviewer, while reading it, quite forgot that he was going to review it."—George Parsons Lathrop, in the N. Y. Star.

"On the news-stands, in the hotel corridors, on the railway trains, the works of BYRNES-HAWTHORNE vie with those of STEVENSON and RIDER HAGGARD in popularity, and possess the unusual method of truth."—N. Y. Sun.

"More like a romance than the mere report of the detection of crime."—The World, N. Y.

"A good story and well told."—N. Y. Tribune.

"True to human nature."—Boston Journal.

The Republic of the Future;

Or, SOCIALISM A REALITY. By ANNA BOWMAN DODD, author of "Old Cathedral Days," etc. 1 vol. New style of binding, 50 cents, cloth, $1.00.

This little book is in the form of a brilliant and highly original series of letters supposed to be written by a Swedish Nobleman, on a visit to America in the 21st Century. In these letters the writer has depicted what the social, civil, and political aspect of America would be under Socialistic rule, after Socialism had become a fixed and stable form of government.
